

What is WHEYLITE ? Code N2

WHEYLITE is a delicious, nutritious, low fat, low kilojoules food drink based on whey. Whey, which naturally contains many nutrients, is the substance remaining when the fat and other components unsuitable for human needs, have been extracted from whole milk in the cheese making process.

Human breast milk is 80% Whey

Wheylite has no cholesterol, has half the fat of full cream milk and a much lower lactose content. That makes it far less likely to cause the allergic reactions like runny noses, sinus or coughs that affect both children and adults. Cow's and goat's milk has 11 allergens, while Wheylite has only 3. Wheylite contains no animal fat which raises cholesterol. We use vegetable fat and very little, only 1.2 grams per 100mls. Best of all, it tastes great and can be used anywhere you would normally use milk.

CALCIUM Cow's milk has a calcium-phosphorous ratio of 1.16 to 1, Wheylite has the more favourable 1.4 to 1.

SUGAR, LACTOSE and PROTEIN

We must have some sugars. In Wheylite, the carbohydrate content is mainly made up of Corn Syrup with a reduced lactose content. In the case of lactose intolerance (Aiactasia), the sufferer lacks an enzyme that would normally convert the lactose (the sugar of milk) into glucose and galactose. The main protein in full cream milk is casein. In the cheese making process most of the casein ends up making the cheese itself. The whey that is left contains the protein Sodium Caseinate which has proven to be much less likely to provoke any allergic reaction. When you compare Wheylite to whole milk, it has only 36% protein and just 30% of casein content. This is good because most people eat far too much meat protein. Since 1982 Wheylite has been used as an alternative to milk and to help over two hundred thousand Australians with dietary

MOCHALITE

Code MCL A delicious blend of Coffee and Chocolate Wheylite for those wanting to reduce their caffeine intake

CHOCOLATE WHEYLITE Code C2B

The chocolate flavour is Cocoa

How many times have you heard of someone being advised by an "expert" to have no "dairy" products? Does that mean, no meat, no leather shoes, no manure on the garden because it might get into your home grown vegetables? What they probably mean is the whole package of the animal milk. If you are told, "no dairy", ask them what they really mean, if they actually know.

Also, you would be well advised not to drink ocean water, however, if all the salts and impurities were removed so that the remainder was pure H2O, would you freak out and say. "Oh no ... I can't have that, it's ocean derived"? Such is the logic of the widely promoted "no dairy" teaching. Whey is surely good stuff, even if it is "dairy derived"

Remember - Whey is 80% of human milk. Makes 10 litres
